

To Whom It May Concern,

I am concerned that our states no call list is in jeopardy and do not wish to see any part of it change. Myself and several of my family members enjoy sitting down to dinner or watching T.V. in the evening and not constantly being bothered by telephone calls from telemarketers. I also don't feel that when you take your business elsewhere that the business has the right to call you up to 18 months later and try to get your business back. I don't feel that they should even be aloud to call you 24 hours after I have canceled their business, because if I wanted to stay with their business I would have never left and went elsewhere. I also don't feel that they have the right to give my telephone number out to anyone else either, or any other information. Myself and my family also enjoy that when we are busy and trying to do things around our homes, or visiting with someone we don't like being bothered by telemarketers. So please hear our voices and leave the state of Wisconsin's no call list law the way it is, myself and my family members would appreciate it very much, and we will be able to enjoy our lives with out all the interruptions.

Sincerely,

Krisandra Maier (concerned citizen)
